"The APNs of Illinois must join forces to counter threats to our professional interests. Although our specialties vary and our educational needs are very different, we need to identify the common ground in professional practice that we have, and highlight where we can ally ourselves to not just protect our respective practices, but to proactively influence legislation and policy in our favor. This first-ever joint conference of ISAPN and IANA is a step in that direction.

"Let us not sit idly by and watch others define our scope of practice and work environment."
